

Navigating the Job Market is tough...

Many jobseekers are confused about where to begin, and may ask: Which job search sites should I use? Do I need a resume? What if I want to change careers? What if I need to make more money? What does the labor market look like where I live? Should I use social media to find a job? Where can I get some help?

Introducing the eMRP The One-Stop Shop for Job Search

The My Reemployment Plan (eMRP) is an online tool to help jobseekers through their job search journey, from creating goals to preparing for the interview, and all those small steps in between. Useful tools, tips and activities in the eMRP can help in planning the next career move and landing that perfect job! By using the eMRP, jobseekers can learn about emerging careers and industries, use social media in the job search, and improve their overall work search and career planning effort. And it's mobile friendly.

Explore topics in the eMRP

- Reflect, Analyze and Explore
- Creating an Effect Resume
- Researching Jobs
- Job Applications
- Using Social Media in Your Job Search
- Alternative Job Search Resources
- Informational Interviews
- Your Job Search and UI
- Interviewing for the Job
- Tapping Your Network
- Bridging the Gap
- American Job Centers (AJC)

There are activities within topics, tailored to help jobseekers achieve goals, identify areas where improvements are needed, prepare and refine their resume, and get quick tips for nailing a job interview.

- My Goals and Action Plan
- Occupation Comparison
- Elevator Pitch
- Personal Data Sheet
- Reference List
- Resources
- Company Contacts
- Job Search Log
- Company Research
- Events and Job Fairs
- Informational Interviews
- Practice Interview Questions
- Alternative Job

Additional resources for the jobseeker include the ability to save documents like their resume, personal notes, important contacts, videos and links to valuable information, all within the tool.

Use the eMRP to interact with jobseekers

Empower your jobseekers by introducing them to the eMRP. Jobseekers may choose to share their search efforts with you via tool permissions, allowing you access to their activities for a more focused and effective work search. This allows you the opportunity to assist them and more effectively target their needs. You are putting a tool in their hands that contains all they need to get started on a successful job search experience.

For more information on the eMRP, contact Benjamin Peirce at bpeirce@naswa.org.

Help jobseekers get started with eMRP.
THE OPTIONS ARE LIMITLESS.